5 THINGS

YOU MIGHT NOT KNOW ABOUT HAMBURGERS

BRIAN CASSELLA/TRIBUNE FILE

Chicago Tribune

May is National Hamburger Month, and the industry hopes you'll forget all about last month, when a Utah man attracted publicity by claiming he had a 14-year-old McDonald's hamburger that has never been refrigerated yet looked like new—no mold, no decomposition. He said he had the July 7, 1999, receipt and that the burger spent its first few years forgotten in a pocket.

McDonald's officials saw no cause for concern, theorizing the burger looked like new because it was dehydrated, not embalmed in scary preservatives. Here are five juicy facts about hamburgers. Please pay attention—you'll be grilled for the answers.

1 Americans eat an astounding 48 billion burgers a year, or about three per week per person. While burgers are pretty cheap, getting them to our table isn't. According to the Center for Investigative Reporting, 6.5 pounds of greenhouse gases are produced to make one tasty quarter-pounder. Over a year, that's equal to 34 coal-fired power plants. If you were willing to give up one burger a week, it would be like not driving your car 350 miles.

2 People frustrated with their careers might take comfort in the fact that McDonald's mogul Ray Kroc was a late bloomer who didn't get into the hamburger business until he was past age 50. Before that, the Oak Park native was a soda fountain worker, ambulance driver, bordello piano player, stock-market board operator, cashier, paper cup salesman, radio DJ and milkshake-mixer salesman.

3 The privately owned In-N-Out Burger chain is famous for discreetly printing Bible citations on its cups and burger wrappers. The company's image could have gone another way. The company chairman's older brother, Guy Snyder, had just received an order of T-shirts featuring an illustration of a girl sitting on top of the chain's famous Double-Double burger when the Bible idea was unveiled. The T-shirts never made it out of their boxes.

4 Marty's Hamburger Stand in west Los Angeles is "home of the combo"—that's a hamburger and sliced hot dog on the same bun.

5 The White Castle hamburger franchise, which claims to be the oldest, originated in Wichita, Kan., but it has a Chicago connection—its buildings were loosely modeled after the Water Tower on North Michigan Avenue.

Don't hook up with this app

✉ redeye@tribune.com
» @dorisdadayan

T-Mobile, and he replaces my phone every time I crack the screen. It's the least he can do for a good customer-service rating, right?

Oh, but Lulu is a totally different way of rating men. According to the website, the app is "the smart girls' app," and when a guy tries to log in, a message pops up on the screen saying, "Dude, you're a dude!" In case there was any confusion.

Lulu uses men's Facebook pages to create a profile and invites users to compile info on everything about the guy. You just plug the name of a guy into the Lulu app to see what your (totally anonymous) virtual girlfriends have to say based on his looks, manners and spending habits, for example, and assign hashtags such as #SexualPanther or #NapoleonComplex. Yes, I need to know that my former co-worker is #Manscaped but a #CommitmentPhobe who #SmellsAmazeballs and is #KinkyIn-TheRightWays yet #HighlyMedicated.

Men reviewed have little access to reply due to being locked out of the app, even though there is a limited accompanying app that lets them edit their basic profile. So, what's a guy to do? Be less #ObsessedWithMom and get a better rating? Should #DudeCantCook take a few culinary lessons to get bumped up? Is there no hope for #FunnyAsAFuneral guy?

On iTunes, the app has a four-star rating, but negative customer reviews from men include, "I'm a faithful man to my girlfriend and it is an obvious violation of my privacy if any random anonymous person can go on this ridiculous site and slander me and lie about me."

Yep, Lulu is poor use of social media. It's a paradise for anyone who enjoys trashing former boyfriends, especially since reviews are anonymous and there's no accountability. Sure, we've all done the Facebook stalking thing, but Lulu isn't going to make dating someone any easier.

We've all been hurt, want justice and wish for the person who did it to get hurt 10 times worse than he hurt you. But publicly shaming someone, calling him a jerk and potentially weakening his chances of dating other women is not going to open the door to good relationships or empower you. Carrying around all that negative energy and resentment does nothing for a person.

So, where's the logic in this app? If a guy is so great, then why would someone rate him on a meat-market app so someone else could snag him?

Apparently not everything is so smart on our smartphones. Oh, Lulu, you shallow app. Even the #HygenicallyChallenged, #NoseHair, #NoGoals dude who has #PerfectGrammar deserves a new start.

MILE

A closer look at Chicago's famous street

By Mick Swasko | REDEYE

Chicago's got more than 4,795 of them, but only one mile is called "magnificent." That stretch of North Michigan Avenue—which actually is just shy of a mile in length—from the Chicago River to Oak Street certainly is bustling. On any given weekday, about 40,000 pedestrians make their way up and down The Magnificent Mile, along with 42,000 cars and trucks. The Mag Mile district, which extends beyond Michigan Avenue, is bounded by North Avenue to the north, Randolph Street to the south, Lake Shore Drive to the east and the Chicago River to the west. The area boasts more than 450 retail outlets, 275 restaurants and 60 hotels.

"It's one of the grand boulevards of the world, and it has been recognized as such," said Ald. Brendan Reilly (42nd), whose district encompasses the Mag Mile. "The fact that Chicago is on the main stage with other global cities, Michigan Avenue is a big part of that."

It's that sort of reverence that draws 20 million people to the Mile annually, and why the comparatively small stretch of Chicago roadway gets so much attention whenever anything happens there—for good or ill.

Since it was branded The Magnificent Mile 66 years ago, the street has been celebrated as a mecca for shopping and fashion, and was both fashioned after and has been compared to Paris' famed Champs-Elysees shopping district. Eight of the Near North Side's 46 historical landmarks dot the district. Throngs of people flocked to the street last month to see the dyeing of the Chicago River for St. Patrick's Day, even with one of the mile's newest restaurants boasting 360 individual beer taps just minutes from the festivities.

Even the magnificent can have its blemishes, however.

Police had to make a special effort to protect the Mag Mile—where many international dignitaries stayed—during May 2012's protests of the NATO Summit. In November, as tens of thousands attended the annual Magnificent Mile Lights Festival, a 56-year-old man stabbed a man attending the celebration and injured a bartender at a Westin hotel. In March, 17 people—mostly minors—were arrested for starting fights and bumping pedestrians on the mile, prompting police to more than double their presence in the area. The heightened patrol will continue through the spring and summer, according to Reilly.

As warm weather approaches, so does the influx of tourists and locals alike to the strip. It's just one mile, but with North Michigan Avenue under the microscope, RedEye broke down some of the numbers on one of the Windy City's main streets.

About 50 3-foot-tall Titleist golf balls dotted the Mag Mile in September to mark the Ryder Cup coming to town. It was the latest in a series of public art displays that pop up on the street. Several of the 300-plus decorated cattle in "Cows on Parade" grazed on North Michigan Avenue in the summer of 1999, which later brought in $3.5 million for charity at auction and generated an estimated $200 million economic boost for the city.

thirteen

The 0.9-mile stretch of North Michigan Avenue spans 13 blocks, from the Chicago River on the south end to Oak Street on the north end. The Magnificent Mile district is the area bounded by North Avenue to the north, Randolph Street to the south, Lake Shore Drive to the east and the Chicago River to the west. According to Google Maps, a start-to-finish trip comes in at about 19 minutes by foot, or 12 minutes if you're going to take a bus.

$1 million

In 2011, the entire length of the Mag Mile was repaved at a cost of $1 million. The project used 2,200 recycled tires, shingles from 130 houses and 24 truckloads of reused asphalt to cover the road, diverting the material from landfills. Traffic was not stopped during the project.

LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

Under a plan floated by Ald. Brendan Reilly (42nd), whose ward includes the Mag Mile, businesses could chip in $30 an hour to pay for extra police to protect the shopping district.

$7.9 billion

Much of the Mag Mile was closed for three days in 2010, as director Michael Bay blew up North Michigan Avenue during filming of "Transformers: Dark of the Moon." The closure rerouted 22 CTA bus routes, and the Tribune later estimated $7.9 billion worth of fictitious damage was done to the city as a whole.

200 trees

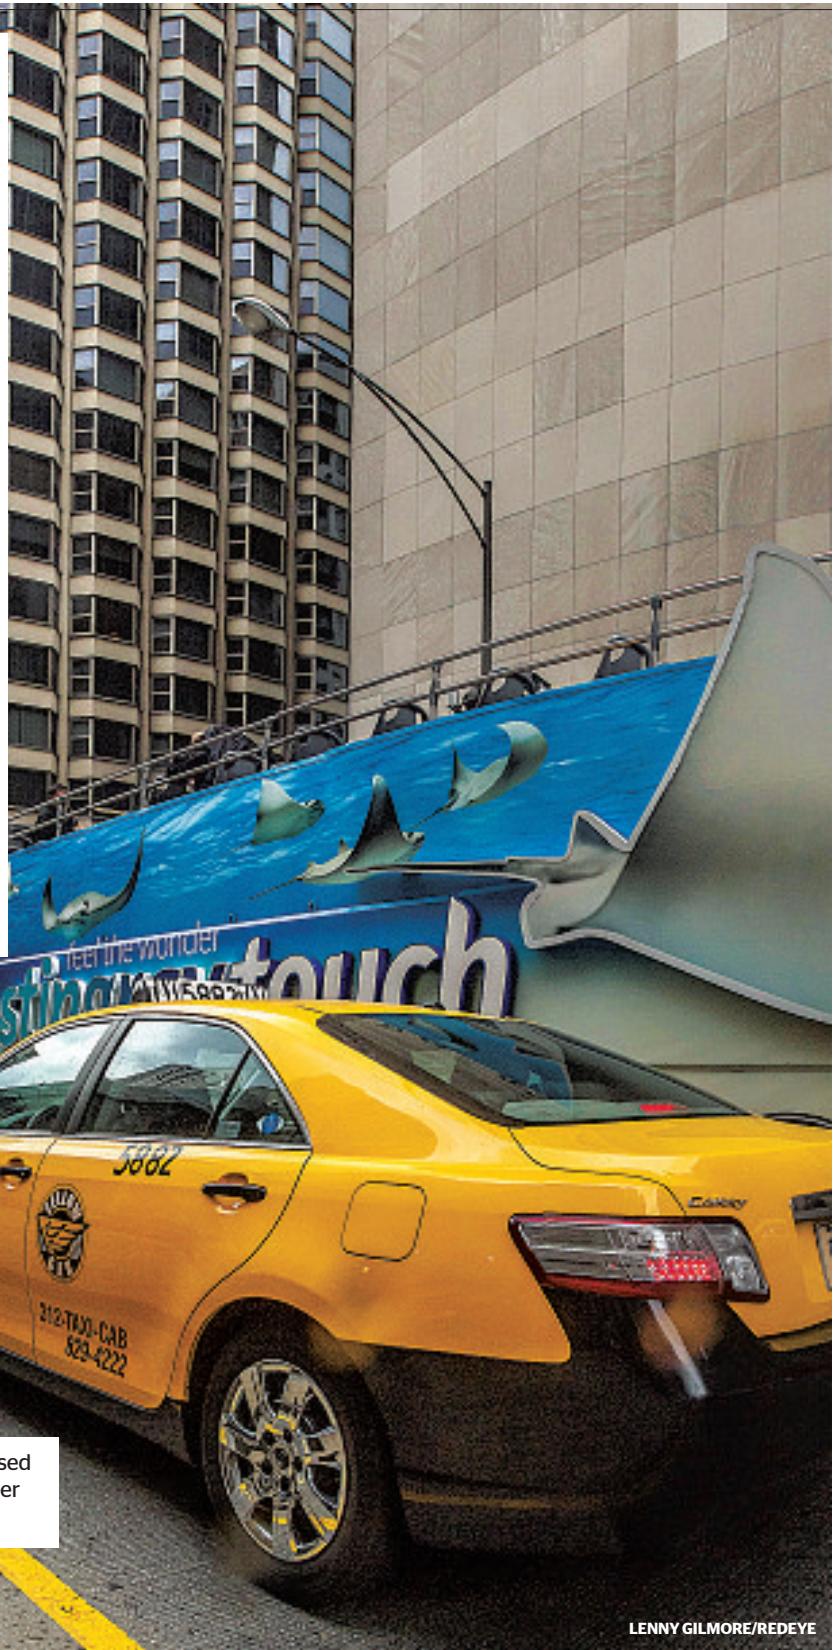

The Magnificent Mile Lights Festival has been a Chicago tradition for more than 20 years during the holidays. Last year, about 1.2 million people came to see the lights and parade, which features about 10,000 fireworks shells, 17,500 cubic feet of helium for balloons and 600 volunteers to pull off. More than 200 trees are strung with lights.

28

Number of people, mostly minors, who were arrested in late March after incidents of "wilding"—or large gatherings of rowdy groups—downtown. Seventeen of those were arrested along the Mag Mile for bumping people and starting fights among themselves.

1,398

Number of police reports generated last year along the North Michigan Avenue strip. Nearly 75 percent of those were for thefts, mostly in department stores and small businesses, according to city crime data. Pickpocketing made up 8 percent of the thefts, most of it occurring on CTA buses.

CHINA-FROWN

CERMAK-CHINATOWN STOP TO BE HIT HARD DURING RED LINE RENOVATION

By Tracy Swartz and JoVona Taylor

Five years ago, a semi-trailer truck crashed into the station escalator, killing two people and injuring about two dozen more.

Over the next few years, the CTA overhauled the station by building a new station house, installing a new elevator and replacing the stairs and escalator. During this time, the CTA closed entrances and rerouted buses to the station, which formally reopened in spring of 2011.

Now the station will close Sunday this time for five months, as the CTA rebuilds the Red Line tracks south of Roosevelt Road. The aim of the project is to rid the line of slow zones that have plagued it for months. The closure presents another setback for transit on the Near South Side, which was starting to rebound in the aftermath of the semi-trailer collision.

The Cermak-Chinatown station last year

THE OTHER OPTION?

Chinatown residents do have an alternative to the CTA. The Chicago Water Taxi has been operating boats on the Chicago River to Chinatown since 2009.

saw 1.6 million entries, a 13 percent increase from 2011, the second highest percentage ridership increase behind the Rosemont Blue Line stop.

This growth has occurred in spite of the slow zones near the station, some of the worst of the Red Line. About 45 percent of Red Line track is under slow zone, areas in which trains travel 35 miles per hour or slower.

This closure to fix the slow zones may cause more headaches in the Chinatown area than in neighborhoods to the south. Other stations, such as the Sox-35th and Garfield stops, have Green Line counterparts a few blocks away.

But construction on the Cermak Green Line station, in between the Roosevelt and 35th/Bronzeville/IIT Green Line stops, won't begin until this summer.

Shuttle buses to the Cermak-Chinatown station from the Roosevelt station are expected to run every 9 minutes during the morning rush hour and every 8½ to 9 minutes in the evening rush hour, which is not as frequent as the shuttle buses running every 3 to 5 minutes from the 95th station, though that station sees many more riders.

Area residents said they plan to allow extra time for commuting during construction.

"I guess I would go to the [Cermak-Chinatown] station and take a bus to Roosevelt and then get on the train," said Evelyn Siple, 24, of Bridgeport. "I'll have to leave earlier definitely."

CHICAGO VIOLENCE

ONE CITY UNDER THE GUN

Chicago on Sunday recorded four homicides—the highest one-day total since January, a RedEye analysis of preliminary police data found.

According to police: At 3:30 a.m., a 20-year-old man was shot to death in the 2800 block of East 76th Street in South Shore.

Later that morning, an 82-year-old woman was found beaten to death in the 7800 block of Euclid Avenue in South Shore.

At 4 p.m., a 21-year-old was fatally shot in the 6500 block of South Green Street in Englewood.

At 6:30 p.m., an 18-year-old was shot in the 7900 block of South Paulina Street in Auburn Gresham. He later died.

Seven homicides were logged Jan. 26, the deadliest day of the year, according to police information.

Police officer kills dog that attacked teen in Englewood

Chicago Tribune

Tyrell Henry had just gotten off the bus and was walking to his high school Wednesday when he got a quick glimpse of a pit bull seconds before it jumped on him.

"When it first bit me, when I was on the ground, I started kicking it," said the 16-year-old sophomore at Urban Prep Academy. "Then I hit it with my book bag."

The dog was still coming after the boy when a police sergeant showed up and shouted at it, then fired a shot. The pit bull ran toward the sergeant and he fired again, killing it.

"Thank God for that officer," Henry later told police. "That dog would have killed me."

The teen suffered puncture wounds to his right leg and foot and received 19 stitches at St. Bernard Hospital and Health Care Center, just around the corner from where the attack occurred in Englewood.

Acting IRS chief steps down

7 WASHINGTON President Obama said Wednesday that acting IRS Commissioner Steven Miller had resigned in response to the controversy over the agency's targeting of conservative groups.

Obama said Treasury Secretary Jack Lew had asked for and accepted Miller's resignation in hopes of restoring confidence in the agency going forward, and he promised to work with Congress to institute new safeguards.

"I will do everything in my power to make sure nothing like this happens again," he said at the White House.

Americans have a right to be angry, the president added. "And I'm angry about it."

Miller, a career IRS employee, became the agency's acting commissioner in November 2012, when then-commissioner Douglas Shulman ended his five-year term.

His role in the tax agency's mishandling of advocacy groups seeking tax-exempt status had come under increasing scrutiny in recent days after revelations that he had not disclosed the issue to Congress after being briefed on it. Several lawmakers, including Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky) and Marco Rubio (R-Fla.), had called for Miller's resignation.

As deputy IRS commissioner for services and enforcement before his promotion in November, Miller at times handled questions from members of Congress who were hearing

A wave of immigrants is set to become the principal driver of U.S. population growth within 30 years, surpassing growth from births for the first time since the mid-1800s, federal government estimates show.

THE HAT TRICK

What's buzzin' in the Hawks' world

Selke smooth

It won't quite make up for his MVP snub, but Jonathan Toews was named a Selke Trophy finalist Wednesday. The award goes to the top defensive forward in the NHL (Detroit's Pavel Datsyuk and Boston's Patrice Bergeron are the other finalists).

THE DIGIT

Wednesday marked the 800th time the Blackhawks and Red Wings faced off. The Hawks were just 317-398-84 in those first 799 games. Not that they'll care, as long as they get four wins in this series.

Have a seat, Stalberg

Looks like Hawks forward Viktor Stalberg has earned a spot in coach Joel Quenneville's doghouse. Stalberg did not skate with any of the top four lines for four straight workouts. A source told the Tribune that Stalberg questioned coaches about his lack of ice time on the power play during the first-round series against Minnesota.

BRAKE FOR NO ONE

WELCOME TO THE
GRIND HOUSE ON MADISON.
WOULD THE WINGS
HALT THE HAWKS?

The Blackhawks are known for being a fast team. And no, not because of Patrick Kane's escapades. To counter the Hawks' team speed, Detroit coach Mike Babcock said he wants this Western Conference semifinal series to be a "grind fest." Would the Red Wings get their wish? Here's how Game 1 unfolded, according to our traffic light rating system. REDEYE

FIRST PERIOD

● Barely 30 seconds in, Marian Hossa forces a turnover, Jonathan Toews picks it up and feeds Brandon Saad, who nearly puts the Hawks up 1-0. So it's gonna be like THAT.

● Wings forward Justin Abdelkader tries to hit Hawks D-man Michal Rozsival—and takes a stick to the face. He might think twice about that next time.

● Wings captain Henrik Zetterberg pings a shot off the post. Score one for Corey Crawford's karma.

● GOAL! Patrick Sharp steals it and the puck finds its way to Hossa, who buries it from the slot. Bonus: It's a power-play goal, and we know how rare those are for the Hawks.

● Well that didn't last long. Damien Brunner ties it for Detroit about a minute after the Hawks take the lead.

Jimmy Howard
REUTERS

● Toews has two shots to beat Jimmy Howard from close, but the Detroit goalie is up to the task. This time.

● Andrew Shaw commits his second penalty in the period. Gotta watch those flying elbows, kid.

SCORE: BLACKHAWKS 1, RED WINGS 1

SECOND PERIOD

● Patrick Kane has a shot from just left of the goal minutes into the period ... but Howard smothers it. And Kaner's scoring drought continues.

● Stupid, stupid penalty by Hawks defenseman Nick Leddy, scooping it into the crowd from his own zone. And the same day RedEye had a two-page story on him, too. Sigh.

● Patrick Sharp tests Howard from long range, and Howard snatches it out of the air with his glove. Minutes later, Howard robs Sharp again on a one-timer. So close.

● Welcome back, Dave Bolland. The Hawks center, recently back from injury, takes Abdelkader down after the whistle, WWE-style. They both get slashing and roughing penalties for their trouble.

● Now it's Hossa's turn to get heated. He's stopped twice in a matter of seconds, then draws a penalty on Niklas Kronwall. The former teammates exchange words, too. What's "watch your back" in Slovakian?

SCORE: BLACKHAWKS 1, RED WINGS 1

THIRD PERIOD

● Johnny Oduya has a clean look at the goal about 90 seconds into the period and tries to go five-hole on Howard, but the Wings goalie is still on fire.

● GOAL! Sharp feeds a wide-open Oduya, who finally beats Howard with a laser beam off the post and in. Could this break the floodgates open?

● As the Hawks continue to dominate, Niklas Hjalmarsson almost backhands one past Howard. And the taunting chants of "How ard! How ard!" ring out from the United Center faithful.

● GOAL! Marcus Kruger stakes the Hawks to a two-goal lead. Might as well be 10-1, the way they're playing.

● Brunner dings one off the crossbar, and Brent Seabrook sweeps one off the goal line. Moments later, Corey Crawford robs Abdelkader from in close. Wheee!

● GOAL! Sharp closes the book on this one with an empty-netter, and the Hawks lead the series.

SCORE: BLACKHAWKS 4, RED WINGS 1

1	Why has Patrick Kane had trouble scoring this postseason?	Because "I only have one goal" is a lousy opening line.	His .08 limit impairs him from even meeting a girl.	I don't know, but he shouldn't feel bad. It happens to lots of guys.	"Just waiting for the Big Stage. I get better as the mullet grows." #HockeySamson	He's been hanging out with Carlos Boozer.
2	Do your best to pay the Detroit Red Wings a compliment.	At least, unlike someone else from Detroit, you've never collaborated with Uncle Kracker.	Umm ... those red uniforms blend in well with your embarrassment of being from Detroit.	You're not the St. Louis Blues. You should be proud of that.	Your speed kills, but we have more. #catchusifyoucan	I gave it the old college try ... now, I'm good.
3	What excuse should Gabe Carimi use for missing Bears OTAs?	"Didn't you guys say to meet at 'OTB? I went to off-track betting and On the Border."	"My knees hurt and Scottsdale has a great pole-dancing workout. It makes all of me feel better."	He crashed his car on Lake Shore Drive and just couldn't make it.	"I feel like an All-Pro when working out by myself. I'm not asked to block anyone."	"I watched the NFL draft and I know that I'm not in the team's plans."
4	Which sports figure said this: "We don't want to be boring"?	Executives at the Golf Channel, fighting a losing fight.	Didn't Dennis Rodman tweet that to Kim Jong Un?	Jonathan Toews, before he ate his steamed chicken dinner and went to bed at 8:30 p.m.	#Bulls #TeamRose #Adidas on the upcoming season at an undisclosed location around September 2012.	Michigan AD Dave Brandon or the kid who turned down a football scholarship to start a rap career.
5	The White Sox are working on fundamentals. What does that mean?	Don't wear your glove on your head. Don't push when the door says "pull." Etc.	Reading, writing and arithmetic? No wonder their defense is so bad!	They're bringing in their dads to teach them how to play catch.	Oh really, teams actually practice being fundamentally challenged? #newcoachsameteam	Begging a bunch of kids from the Dominican Republic to follow them onto a plane headed to the South Side.

Chicago Tribune

MIAMI In the end, a different kind of pain prevailed.

This Bulls' season was filled with talk of torn wrist and knee ligaments; of plantar fasciitis and spinal taps; of rosters stretched thin and thesauruses stretched thinner after gritty and undermanned victories.

And it finally came to an end Wednesday night at American Airlines Arena, when the Heat closed out these Eastern Conference semifinals with a 94-91 victory in Game 5.

It's the second time in three seasons the Heat have ended the Bulls' season with a four-game losing streak.

The wild game featured the Bulls—who again were without Derrick Rose, Luol Deng and Kirk Hinrich—trailing by 18 early, leading by 11, blowing an eight-point lead to open the fourth and Nate Robinson and Jimmy Butler missing game-tying 3-pointers on the final possession.

That left a hurt that will linger all offseason.

"That's sort of the story of the season," coach Tom Thibodeau said of overcoming the adversity of the early deficit. "I told the guys this: Obviously we're disappointed in losing the series. But I was never disappointed in our team. Our team fought hard all year long. There was no quit in them."

LeBron James led the Heat with 23 points; Dwyane Wade added 18.

REDEYE

How much does Chicago love its beer? Our craft beer week is 11 days long, if that's any indication. The fourth annual Chicago Craft Beer Week (May 16-26) is busier than past years, with 21 new breweries joining the lineup of tastings, tap takeovers and $4 pint nights. The schedule can seem a bit intimidating to newcomers, so we've mapped out the ultimate calendar for those looking to dip their toes into Chicago's thriving beer world. If you're planning to attend multiple events, download the free Chicago Craft Beer Week app (chibeerweek.com), which has a complete listing of the approximately 300 events, plus neighborhood guides and a function that tracks your attendance, earns you points and could win you some swag at the end of the week. My advice to first-timers? Check out a bar you've never been to, drink plenty of water and clear your week of morning meetings.

THURSDAY

Pre- and post- Beer Under Glass Party

Haymarket Pub & Brewery
737 W. Randolph St. 312-638-0700

Beer Under Glass, the CCBW kick-off party at Garfield Park Conservatory, has been sold out for weeks, but anyone can attend the unofficial pre- and post-festivities at Haymarket in the West Loop. Expect to find brewers and beer fans chatting it up over popular Haymarket drafts such as Mathias Imperial IPA and two new collaboration beers made in conjunction with BuckleDown Brewing. 3 p.m. Free admission.

FRIDAY

Regional Cluster[bleep]

Local Option, 1102 W. Webster Ave. 773-348-2008

When one of the city's best beer bars hosts its largest event of the week, expect to try some very tasty brews. Make sure to arrive early, as limited releases from breweries such as Evil Twin, Central Waters, Dark Horse and Local Option itself won't last long. If you don't get your hands on the rarest beers, don't sweat it: the bar's draft list is consistently packed with intriguing options. 3 p.m. Free admission.

Local Option

SATURDAYOver the Influence:
The Art of Beer

Co-Prosperity Sphere
3219 S. Morgan St. 773-837-0145

Like food and art along with your beer? Then head to Bridgeport, where the folks behind beer 'zine Mash Tun have teamed up with chef Won Kim of homebrew group Brew Ha Ha to host a night of visual art and culture as it relates to beer. Yes, underground bacon. 5-9 p.m. Tickets are $30 and are available at undertheinfluenceartshow.org.

Beer Prom

Atlas Brewing Company
2747 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-295-1270

Imagining reliving your prom, but with better beer and with probably fewer tacky tuxes. Atlas and next-door bowling alley Seven Ten Lounge host an evening of Two Brothers beer, '80s music and dancing—corsages optional. 9 p.m. Free admission.

SUNDAY25th Anniversary Block Party

Goose Island Beer Company
1800 W. Fulton St. 312.226-1119

The Chicago-based brewery responsible for 312, Honker's Ale and others celebrates a silver anniversary with a block party on Fulton Street near the production brewery. Rare Goose Island releases will be tapped along with guest beers from Half Acre, Virtue Cider and others. Noon-3 p.m. Tickets are $25 and are available at gooseisland25.eventbrite.com.

MONDAYGreenbush and Local Option Invasion

Farmhouse. 228 W. Chicago Ave. 312-280-4960

Get to know two stellar Midwest breweries—Chicago's Local Option and Greenbush from Sawyer, Mich.—as each take over four taps at this River North farm-to-table tavern. 6-10 p.m.

Local Option

TUESDAY$2 Pint Night

Easy Bar
1944 W. Division St. 773-227-4644

For less than the cost of a latte, take a chance on a new beer from breweries such as Revolution, Bell's, Founders and more at this laid-back Wicker Park bar. 5 p.m.

WEDNESDAYNew Wave Brewer Showcase

Hamburger Mary's
5400 N. Clark St. 773-784-6969

If you can't keep up with all the new beer companies launching around the city, get a crash course at this new brewery meet-and-greet. Chat and drink with brewers from operations that have opened within the year (or plan to open by year's end) such as Spiteful, DryHop, Ale Syndicate, Begyle and more. 7-10 p.m. $20 buys 20 drink tickets.

MAY 23Northwest Side Craft Beer Ride

Hosted by Lake Effect Brewing, 312-919-4473

Irving Park, this one's for you. Hop aboard a party bus at any of the eight participating Northwest Side bars for a craft beer pub crawl that makes stops at spots such as Fischman Liquors & Tavern, Hops & Barley and McGill's Bar & Grill, where bartenders will pour drafts from Pipeworks, Argus, Lagunitas and others. 6:30 p.m. $20 includes transportation, a map and a commemorative glass. Tickets are available at brownpapertickets.com/event/369693.

Celebrating Real Women of Craft Beer

Riverview Tavern
1958 W. Roscoe St. 773-248-9523

Brewing can seem like a boys' club, but female brewers from Metropolitan, 4 Paws, Two Brothers and others will be on hand at this film screening of "The Love of Beer," a documentary about the rise of women in the beer industry. This party also marks the release of a saison beer called 99 Problems that the women brewed together. 6:30 p.m. Free admission.

MAY 24Allagasm

The Bar on Buena 910 W. Buena Ave. 773-525-8665

Maybe you've tried Allagash White, but there's more to this Maine-based brewer of Belgian-style ales than just that beer. Pop in to this under-the-radar craft beer bar in Uptown for tappings of special brews and an education in all things Allagash. 7 p.m.

MAY 25West Loop Craft Beer Fest

Clinton Street between Lake and Washington streets. 312-504-1884

What's better than drinking craft beer? Drinking craft beer outside. Hope for sunshine for the first-ever West Loop Craft Beer Fest, which shuts down Clinton Street near the Chicago French Market. Dozens of Midwest breweries will be on hand, and vendors from the market will provide food for purchase. Noon-5 p.m. Tickets are $40-$65 and are available at westloopcraftbeefest.brownpapertickets.com.

MAY 26Lambic and Sour Beer Festival

Delilah's. 2771 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-472-2771

Fans of fruit beers can expand their palates at this annual event, which showcases lambics (spontaneously fermented fruit beers) and sours (slightly tart or acidic beers) from breweries such as Cantillon, Hanssens, Chapeau and Drie Fonteinen in addition to $4 pints of Brewery Vivant Tart Side of the Moon during all of CCBW. Warning: These sours just might become your new favorite drinks. Noon-5 p.m. $20 buys 20 drink tickets.

Triple Chocolate Chunk cookie at Insomnia Cookies
2260 N. Lincoln Ave. 877-632-6654

Take your late-night sugar cravings to the new Chicago location of this popular dessert delivery service offering cookies, brownies and ice cream sandwiches just steps away from DePaul University's Lincoln Park campus. You have the option of dining in, ordering to go or calling or emailing for delivery (check insomniacookies.com for delivery area). Regular-size cookies are $1.75 apiece (white chocolate macadamia, peanut butter, snickerdoodle, etc.), while the deluxe cookies are bigger, fancier and cost $2.50 each.

For a twist on the traditional cookie experience, choose the deluxe Triple Chocolate Chunk: The warm and gooey conglomeration of large chocolate squares puts tiny chocolate chips to shame. Order with a jug of cold milk from 11 a.m.-3 a.m. and re-create the scrumptious childhood ritual of milk and oven-fresh cookies whenever you please. TRIBUNE

ALBUM REVIEW

Modern Vampires of the City
Vampire Weekend

By Kyle Kramer

FOR REDEYE

Of course Vampire Weekend, those finely dressed ivy Leaguers, were going to get the preciously assembled, wryly observant indie-pop thing right. Anything less would have been a betrayal of their promise when they first buttoned up their cardigans and told us to think of them as the band with the buttoned-up cardigans. Even as the band put out two extremely good albums that offered as much in the way of piercing emotional insight as in slyly deprecatory cultural references, there was no escaping the gimmick of being the clever, preppy and painstakingly self-aware band that could easily be the subject of one of its own songs.

An economic recession and the full run of "Gossip Girl" later, Vampire Weekend's crisply pressed khakis and oxford shirts are shabbier, more lived-in and not really the subject of their songs anymore. On the group's third album, "Modern Vampires of the City," the carefully assembled aesthetic is still present, but the music is looser, sparser and fuzzier—more laid-back downtown rock than fussy uptown chamber pop. The dominant themes are death, doubt and a restless

"carpe diem" philosophy. The most gimmicky it ever feels is a spoken-word monologue about finding love in a falafel shop, and even that works. People previously bothered by Vampire Weekend probably will like this album better—if the group's preciousness/ cleverness is what got on their nerves before.

The album is at its best when it hovers with precision on the edge of moments of minor collapse, as in the pairing of Ezra Koenig's keening, encouraging chorus with restrained piano and drums on opener "Obvious Bicycle," or in the old school rock 'n' roll romp "Diane Young" (a more upbeat spelling of the song's actual hero, "dyin' young"). The frayed, Paul Simonesque "Everlasting Arms" is simultaneously frightened, wistful and comforting. "Hannah Hunt," the album's biggest highlight, slowly disintegrates from a carefully composed, minimalist road trip ballad into blown-out vocals and a crisis of faith.

Occasionally, as on "Don't Lie" and "Hudson," the careful balance drifts too far into jarring discomfort, but mostly "Modern Vampires of the City" offers a meticulously assembled picture of the world that characters in past Vampire Weekend songs were only too happy to ignore. As a result, the album escapes much of the cute lampooning that once defined the band and, in its uncertainties, is much more knowing than those precocious characters ever were.

Chris Barra, Vice President of Android Product development for Google

Google gets streaming

Tribune news services

Google is taking on music-streaming services like Pandora, Spotify and Rdio with its own music subscription service called Google Play Music All Access.

With the new service, announced at its annual developers' conference in San Francisco, Google has adopted the streaming music business model ahead of rival Apple, which pioneered online music purchases with iTunes.

Google's "All Access" service lets users customize song selections from 22 genres, ranging from jazz to indie music, stream individual playlists, or listen to a curated, radio-like stream that can be tweaked. All Access will combine the millions of songs in the Google library with users' own music collections, which can be uploaded to Google Play. The service will work on the Web and on mobile devices.

A "Listen Now" feature uses Google's analytics powers to pick out tunes and artists it thinks a listener will enjoy. It looks at someone's past listening habits and, over time, figures out what he or she likes and what he or she probably will skip. The "Listen Now" view shows a grid of music stations as well as albums.

There also is a human component to the new service: Google has music editors curating the songs in distinct radio stations.

The new Google service offers more control than some of its rivals. Unlike Pandora, for example, you can see a list of songs coming up on a station and delete in advance any songs you don't want to hear.

"It's as laid-back as you want to or as interactive as you want it to be," said Chris Yerga, Google's engineering director for Android.

Yerga said discovering music online has become "more like work" than it was in the golden days of digging through stacks of vinyl in a record store.

At $9.99 a month, Google's music service is costlier than the $3.99 required for Pandora, but on par with Spotify. Users will get a one-month free trial period, but unlike Spotify or Pandora, there is no free version.

At the conference, Google also unveiled improvements to other services, including new mapping features and a voice-activated search. The focus was on giving more options to users of mobile devices using its Android operating system.

Dwight makes right

Boastful, cocky and delusional, Dwight thinks he has all the answers—even though he clearly doesn't. Some examples of Schrute philosophy:

- "I never smile if I can help it. Showing one's teeth is a submission signal in primates. When someone smiles at me, all I see is a chimpanzee begging for its life."
- "Whenever I'm about to do something, I think, 'Would an idiot do that?' And if they would, I do not do that thing."
- "I don't believe in coddling people. In the wild, there is no health care. In the wild, health care is: 'Ow, I hurt my leg. I can't run, a lion eats me and I'm dead.' Well, I'm not dead. I'm the lion."
- "Nostalgia is truly one of the great human weaknesses—second only to the neck."
- "Women are like wolves. If you want one, you must trap it. Snare it. Tame it. Feed it."
- "There's too many people on this Earth. We need a new plague."

BEST OF 'THE OFFICE'

After 9 seasons, the NBC sitcom (finally) clocks out

Contra Costa Times

At nine seasons, "The Office" lasted longer than it should have. Even before Steve Carell's bumbling Michael Scott departed in 2011, NBC's adaptation of a British classic was showing signs of wear and tear. But that doesn't mean we won't have an abundance of fond memories when "The Office" airs a final 2-hour episode at 7 p.m. Thursday. Let's look back at this groundbreaking "mockumentary" that cleverly captured all the drudgery, hilarity, awkwardness and tensions of a typical cubicle-filled workplace. Here are greats moments from the history of Michael Scott and Dwight Schrute (Rainn Wilson).

Dumb Michael Scott moments

Trying to recap all of Michael's outrageous blunders over the years would be like attempting to collect snowflakes in a blizzard. Instead, we've settled on a few standouts:

- As if running over Meredith with his car isn't stupid enough, Michael holds a fun run to raise awareness of the dangers of rabies. He loads up on carbs right before the race, barely completes the run and pukes at the finish line. ("Fun Run")
- Michael sleeps with a George Foreman grill next to his bed so he can wake up to the smell of bacon. Unfortunately, one day, he steps onto the hot grill, and it gets clamped onto his foot. ("The Injury")
- Michael's heart is bigger than his brain. To wit: He promises a group of underprivileged kids he will pay for their college education if they graduate. When they do, he's forced to admit he doesn't have the funds. Instead, he gives them laptop batteries. ("Scott's Tots")
- When Michael learns Oscar is gay, he inadvertently outs him to the entire office. Eager to make up for the blunder, he attempts to demonstrate his acceptance—but winds up making things even worse by kissing Oscar. ("Gay Witch Hunt")
- Infuriated when someone jokes that being in prison might be better than working for Dunder Mifflin, Michael takes on the persona of "Prison Mike" in an attempt to scare them straight. But his shtick is more ridiculous than scary. The worst thing about life in the "clink"? All the Demontos flying around. ("The Convict")

A cure for shaky camera work

Tiffen Steadicam Smoothee for iPhone 4/5 and GoPro

From $126 at bhphotovideo.com, adorama.com, amazon.com

What it is: a lightweight hand-held camera-stabilization device that allows users to create smooth, stable videos while on the move with their iPhone or a GoPro. The Steadicam Smoothee is a looping metal frame with stabilizing weights and a built-in camera mount. Different models come with a case for iPhone 4/4S, iPhone 5 or the GoPro. Cases feature a quick-release removable camera mount that fits in the Smoothee's camera mount along with most tripods. The Smoothee is 2 1/2 inches deep, 8 inches wide and 14 1/2 inches long. According to my luggage scale, it weighs slightly more than a pound. The easy-grip handle folds up for portability.

The Smoothee also comes with a belt clip.

The good: It's easy to use out of the box and makes pans from left to right or up and down smooth and shake-free. Initially we struggled to get the counterbalance adjusted, but once we had the Smoothee tuned for the thumb and index finger, shooting video was easy. On a hike in Utah, we carried it over the shoulder for easy access. It also has a bit of a "wow" factor if you like to impress people with your gadgets.

The bad: It's awkward to pack, so we sometimes leave it behind. We wish the Smoothee could fold in half to make it more compact, but that might diminish its perfect balance.

GOODMAN THEATRE'S SCENEMAKERS BOARD

SCENE SOIREE

SATURDAY, JUNE 15 | 7 – 11PM

Ignite Glass Studios, 401 N. Armour Street, Chicago
Tickets are only $85!

It's the hottest event for young professionals this year.

An evening inspired by fashion, featuring music from one of Chicago's hottest DJs, an open bar serving artistically blended cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and a silent auction featuring exclusive items. All proceeds benefit the Goodman's General Theater Studies program for Chicago teens.

Spread the word to your network!

Get up-to-date information on the Soiree at #Scene13 or R.S.V.P. to our Facebook event.

Ride in style. UBER is the official ride of the Soiree. Attendees will receive $30 off black car service*.

*For first-time UBER users only. Promo code to follow.

Dressing for the journey

These top performers will get travelers from Point A to Point Z

Chicago Tribune

A zip pocket is like a luxury hotel when you're traveling. If just one garment you're wearing has one, you can check in your ID, credit card and phone, then relax and enjoy the rest of the adventure.

What you pack beyond that can shoot in as many directions as flights out of Heathrow, depending on your destination and itinerary, not to mention body type and tastes.

But as fees climb and wait times grow for checking baggage, packing efficiently counts more than ever. As a departure point, your packing list should check these three boxes (and we offer a few specifics below to do so):

Versatility: Establish a neutral base—black, gray, khaki.

Performance: Think wrinkle/stain resistance, moisture-wicking and lightweight.

Comfort: Reach for stretch fabrics, zip pockets and slip-on shoes.

If there's space to spare after that, dark jeans get great mileage on the road. Plus, guys might consider adding a sport coat with some stretch. And women might invest in a maxi dress. Why? As Wanderlust Festival marketing director Karina Mackenzie puts it: "I don't mind looking like a schlub in the office, but I'd rather be overdressed when traveling, especially in Europe."

'STAR TREK INTO DARKNESS'

WEDNESDAY, HOLLYWOOD

The "Star Trek" ladies apparently did that middle-school thing where you call all your friends in the morning and coordinate outfits. This time, the theme was shimmer, and when you're dealing with an intergalactic situation, there's nothing more appropriate than shimmer—unless, like ZOE SALDANA and JENNIFER MORRISON, your outfit is hideous. But ALICE EVE'S dress more than made up for them, and Captain Kirk (CHRIS PINE) and Mr. Spock (ZACHARY QUINTO) were dapper.

Space Nine, which is a thing we're starting.

SUMMER CATCH

Who's looking the best on the movie red carpets?

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

We all know summer's classic movie battle of the blockbusters, but there's another war being fought this year: the premiere red carpets. (OK, we're not actually sure if stars care about this, but our friends' drama is getting us down, so it's time to invent something more entertaining.) Who's promoting the hell out of the movie, and who needs to promote a new stylist? We hit the premieres to find out. DMORAN@TRIBUNE.COM | @REDEYEDANA; REUTERS.GETTYIMAGESPHOTOS.COM

WEDNESDAY, CANNES FILM FESTIVAL

"The Great Gatsby" did have a New York premiere, but they waited until the film fest to bust out the real glamour, because France. NICOLE KIDMAN had sort of a mullet punk-rock hair thing going on that probably was inspired by last week's Met Ball; CAREY MULLIGAN had her shoulder-length hair down, which looked lovely; and LEONARDO DICAPRIO rocked a respectable goatee. Oh, and it rained.

'THE GREAT GATSBY'

APRIL 24, HOLLYWOOD

ROBERT DOWNEY JR.'S WIFE, SUSAN, and his red Audi probably were the best-dressed things on this carpet. Otherwise, GWYNETH PALTROW, sheer butt curtains, aaaaaaaaa. We'd also like to give both Robert and DON CHEADLE snaps for wearing vests with their suits. Ain't nothin' like the real thing.

'PAIN & GAIN'

APRIL 22, HOLLYWOOD

Clues about the quality of this movie: Someone named BAR PALY wore something that's sheer in the butt. Huge props to REBEL WILSON for taking the fun route and wearing red sparkles, but The Rock was nowhere to be found. And it's not like The Rock is someone who's difficult to miss.

Stylin'

Rihanna's upcoming Style Network show just got even cooler.

Pharrell Williams will join "Styled to Rock," scheduled to launch later this year, as a mentor on RiRi's designer competition series, thr.com reports. The Grammy winner certainly has the chops. He's designed clothes, jewelry, accessories and even furniture.

Dream team?

What do a multimillion-dollar fantasy epic and a low-budget half-hour gross-out comedy have in common? You might be surprised. "Game of Thrones" showrunners D.B. Weiss and David Benioff have written an episode of "It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia" that will air next season, according to a tweet from "Sunny" star Rob McElhenney. It makes sense if you think about it ...

In and out

So long, Shakira. The new mom is leaving "The Voice" after one season as a coach, usmagazine.com reports, to be replaced by a familiar face: former coach Christina Aguilera. "I have to take a little break," Shakira said. "But you never know, I might come back!" Could Cee Lo Green's return be next?

“ If he was a character in a movie, he would be like Iron Man.”

—Will.i.am, talking about Prince Harry at an American Friends of the Royal Foundation benefit in New York, according to eonline.com. He continued: "He's a dude ... he's a party guy, he's a technology guy, he comes from royalty, but he's a real person."

Free lunch

That rumor about Jaden Smith moving out of his parents' house when he turns 15? It was just that—a rumor. "I'm not going anywhere," Jaden told Ellen DeGeneres on Wednesday. "The thing that people don't get is that everything at his house is free." Smart kid.
